ARCADIA HEIGHTS—HYMN.

(Tune, "My Maryland.")

My heart is turning to the Heights, Arcadia, Arcadia;
To thee the mount of pure delights, Arcadia, Arcadia.
O let me find thy cooling breeze,
Thy graveled walks and shady trees,
Thy calm retreat, and dwell at ease
With those who love Arcadia.

"O come aside and rest awhile," I hear the Christ entreating,
The world's alarm is in my ears, its cares upon me beating,
I need thy calm and quiet hour,
The heavenly breath, the sacred bower,
I need the Spirit's gentle power,
I come to thee, Arcadia.

Arcadia, Arcadia, To thee my heart is turning;
The summer's here, and all the year for thee my soul's been yearning
The campfire's glow, the healthful booth,
The love of friends, the bloom of youth,
The praise of God, the flow of truth,
Are found with thee, Arcadia.

Arcadia, Arcadia, I love thy vales and mountains,
Thy wooded hills, thy rocks and rills, the Ozark's crystal fountains.
The charms of nature center there,
With scenes of beauty everywhere,
I come to thee for rest and prayer,
I come to thee, Arcadia.

About Voting.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 8.—The campaign of education recently inaugurated by Secretary of State Cornelius Roach which has for its object an exercise of discrimination between the good and bad propositions on the constitutional ballot by the voters next November is bearing fruit. Last week there were 278 rural newspapers in the State that gave to their readers the substance of the twelve measures that are proposed, eight being amendments to the Constitution and four referendum acts. These newspapers have an average circulation of 2,000 and thus directly reached approximately 556,000 of the 750,000 voters in the State. The fact that there is manifestly no probability of an early constitutional convention impresses the average citizen with the necessity of exercising his judgment at the polls on these measures as they are submitted separately at successive general elections. The history of constitutional legislation by popular vote reveals that many measures defeated the first time submitted have been adopted at subsequent elections, and that voters in recent elections more favorably consider these proposed amendments than formerly. If who takes the ballot and votes indiscriminately either for all the measures, or against all the measures, with no regard for the merits of each. Friends of the initiative and referendum law, and the friends of good government generally will advise that every voter exercise a discriminating judgment, favoring the good and opposing the bad. This ought not to be expecting too much from citizens enjoying a republican form of government in a State that has had universal free schools for generations.

Boiled down, the questions to decide this year in the order as they will appear on the ballot are as follows:

1. Do you, or do you not, want taxation questions handled by the general assembly only, or by popular vote too?
2. Do you, or do you not, want to permit Kansas City to own its public utilities?
3. Do you, or do you not, want the State to levy a mill tax for use in improving public roads?
4. Do you, or do you not, want to make the salary of a member of the legislature one thousand dollars a year?
5. Do you, or do you not, want to give St. Louis debt-making power to build or buy a subway for the purposes of rapid transit?
6. Do you, or do you not, want to give voters of a special or general road district power by majority vote to levy a local tax for good roads?
7. Do you, or do you not, want the State to provide pensions for the deserving blind?
8. Do you, or do you not, approve of making it easier for Kansas City and St. Louis to amend their charters?
9. Do you, or do you not, wish to fix by law the number of men a railroad company shall employ to make a "full crew" for operating certain trains?
10. Do you, or do you not, approve making the county the basic unit for regulating the liquor traffic?
11. Do you want St. Louis or the State of Missouri to name the excise commission that administers the liquor laws applicable in that city?
12. Do you want St. Louis or the State to name the police commission that controls the metropolitan police department of that city?

The words, "Yes," "No," will appear on the ballot opposite each of these measures. The voter that scratches out the "Yes" votes against the proposition. He who marks out the "No" votes in favor of the proposition. All the propositions this year are so simple a school boy can understand them. Each measure may be remembered by its number, or may be recognized by its ballot title. The number, title and full text will be found on the ballot, but no voter is expected to wait till he gets in the voting booth to read the full text. The man that waits till that hour to acquaint himself with the text then in order to decide which way to vote, better entirely ignore the constitutional ballot and refuse to vote any part of it. Intelligent judgment is the bulwark of good popular government. Information disseminated and digested increases intelligence and aids judgment as expressed by the ballot. In the great work of arousing public sentiment on current issues, I crave the activity and assistance of the press of the State, for the newspapers are the teachers of the masses and the corner stone of the commonwealth. On them rest the progress and perpetuity of every republic.

CORNELIUS ROACH.

Withdraws from Race for State Senate.

To the Democrats of Phelps County: Shortly after my announcement as a candidate for State Senator a number of active Democrats in this county approached me, and urged me to withdraw from the race for Senator, and submit my name as a candidate for Representative from this county. The reason suggested by them in making the request was, that as there had been some discord in the party locally, they believed such a course on my part would have a tendency to bring about a harmonious condition in the ranks of the party, and would insure a careful and painstaking interest in the welfare of Phelps County and its citizens in the General Assembly of Missouri.

I told them then that I had no personal ambition to serve in being a candidate for State Senator, and that I was actuated by a desire to be of service to my State and its people, and that I could perhaps be as useful as a member of the House as I could if I were a member of the Senate.

In the meantime, and before any conclusion was reached, Hon. Wm. J. Salts announced as a candidate for the nomination of Representative. This, of course, settled the matter as far as I was concerned, and as far as they were concerned, because it was not their desire, nor neither was it mine, to precipitate any contest for this position.

They and I have now been informed that Mr. Salts has withdrawn as a candidate for Representative, and they have renewed their request that I should withdraw from the Senatorial race and submit my name to the Democratic primary for Representative.

Inspired by no political ambition, and prompted only by a wish to be of service to the people and my party, and especially so to those with whom I am personally associated, I have consented to withdraw from the Senatorial race, and submit my name to my party for nomination as Representative.

In doing so, I shall not enter into any unseemly contest for the position. And if the Democrats of Phelps County feel that another will serve them better, I shall bow in submission to their will, and join in the effort to secure his election at the polls in November.

If I am nominated by the party I shall make a vigorous and an active canvas for the election.

Hoping that my position in the matter may be thoroughly understood, and relying upon the integrity and intelligence of my party to at all times do the right and best thing, I am,

Sincerely,
FRANK H. FARRIS.

Bank Stock Declines.

(Jackson Cash-Book.)

There is quite a good deal of interest being taken in the present condition of the Bankers' Trust Company of St. Louis by people down here in this section of the State. This bank was organized by Mr. J. E. Franklin, well known throughout Southeast Missouri by reason of the number of banks he organized in this section of the State. Mr. Franklin is president of the Bankers' Trust Company, whose stock, we understand, within the past three weeks has dropped from $190 to $40, the lowest figure of which we have taken note. Mr. Franklin's St. Louis bank is said to have been organized mostly with Southeast Missouri capital, some of which was furnished by citizens in this county. President Franklin is quoted as saying that the bank is on a sound financial basis, notwithstanding the low quotations of its stock in the market. However, if a bank's stock, quoted three weeks ago at $190, drops $150 in so short a time, the investors can't help but feel a little shaky over the situation, in spite of what its president says.

J. E. Franklin started first in the banking business here in Jackson by organizing the Cape County Savings Bank. He is a fine citizen, a cultured gentleman, and a leader in church circles. The editor of this paper recalls many pleasant hours spent with Mr. Franklin when he was a citizen of Jackson and president of our local Shakespearean club, a literary organization composed of such men as Prof. Ellis, Rev. W. Beal, the Symons brothers, A. R. Byrd, Dr. R. T. Henderson, and others. In those days, as now, the editor knew more about Shakespeare than he did about finance, and Mr. Franklin was an adept in both. We recall that along about 1894-5, when the free-silver wave was gathering strength, Mr. Franklin was an ardent free-silver advocate himself. But it was not until he developed from merely a financier into a high financier, and he became what was popularly known as a gold-bug. We remember with what avidity and admiration Mr. Franklin devoured, appreciated and recommended the "Silver Nuggets" papers. Long Stevens got up and with which he flooded the State from one end to the other. But like Mr. Franklin, Stevens too soon developed from a financier to a high financier—soon flowered into a gold-bug butterfly of delicate and beautiful shades and colorings. Mr. Franklin was indeed a good citizen among us, and a fine gentleman, and did a great deal for Jackson and the country round about. We truly hope that if he has wasted into financial waters too deep it may not be in his case as it was with one of Shakespeare's people whose ambition overleaped itself and who bewailed his fate thus:

"... I am in (—?),
Stepped in so far that, should I wade
no more,
Returning were as tedious as go o'er."

Save Egg Losses During Hot Weather.

Statistics show that during the summer months from one-fourth to over one-half the eggs produced in Missouri is a total or partial loss.

Heat is directly or indirectly responsible for a loss to Missouri farmers of two and one-half million dollars worth of eggs annually. Heat causes germ growth, embryo and mold development, increases evaporation and causes eggs to become bad in a very short time. April eggs are high in quality because of the lower temperature which prevails at that time.

According to studies made at the Missouri College of Agriculture, nearly all of the loss in eggs due to heat can be avoided by the ordinary conveniences that the average farm provides. If farmers would take the same care of eggs that they do of butter before and during the time it is taken to market, there would be practically no loss from heat. Any temperature above 70 degrees is too warm. Even under the best conditions eggs should be taken to market at least once each week.

Eggs should be collected daily and should be cooled as quickly as possible. A sweet, fresh basement which is cool or a cyclone cellar makes a satisfactory place to store eggs. They may also be kept cool by placing them in bucket lowered into a well. Avoid storing them in musty basements and keep them away from fires.

If these directions are followed and eggs are carefully protected from heat while being taken to market, the value of Missouri's egg crop may be increased two and one-half million dollars during the next four months.
